

WHEN YOUR CHILD NEEDS ER24

NOBODY KNOWS OR UNDERSTANDS YOUR CHILD BETTER THAN YOU DO. ALWAYS TRUST YOUR GUT IF YOU FEEL YOUR CHILD REQUIRES EMERGENCY MEDICAL ATTENTION

IF YOUR CHILD

- Complains of severe pain
- Has trouble breathing
- Has diarrhoea and vomiting that won't stop
- Is injured in a fall, crash, or while playing sports
- Is experiencing painful bowel movements
- Is running a fever and not responding to medication
- Has been exposed to a toxic substance
- Is showing signs of dehydration

DIAL *120*15570# FOR TRAUMA ASSIST or CALL ER24 084 124

MEDICAL EMERGENCIES MAY BE CAUSED BY THE ENVIRONMENT. CONTACT EMERGENCY SERVICES IN THE EVENT OF

ANAPHYLAXIS

This is a severe, life-threatening reaction to an allergen, such as pollen, stings, food or medication. The most effective treatment for anaphylaxis is adrenaline. Call emergency services immediately, as adrenaline must be injected into a muscle as soon as anaphylaxis occurs.

SMOKE INHALATION

After being exposed to smoke, your child's chest might sink and their nostrils flare when trying to draw breath.

POISONING

If your child has swallowed something dangerous, find the packaging, so paramedics know what it is.

NEAR-DROWNING

Perform CPR if required while waiting for ER24 to arrive.

BURNS

Cover the burn with a clean cloth or cling film to help reduce any risk of infection.

TYPES OF INFECTIONS

Viral, bacterial or fungal, any infection that isn't treated properly can cause serious harm. Infections range from mild to life-threatening.

IS IT A FRACTURE?

If you notice bruising or swelling around a bone after a fall, this could be a sign of a fracture.
